

The Russell C. Hill Award is the highest recognition for individuals and organizations making an outstanding contribution to character education at the local, state, or national level that has added to the quality of life for families through Learning for Life programs.

Russell C. Hill Award Fact Sheet

Background

Russell Chilton Hill, a prominent businessman from San Antonio, Texas, spent much of his time and fortune promoting character education based on his “Freedoms Code,” which earned him the Freedom Foundation’s Honor Medal. Hill made a pledge to fight for public support for the development of character in the youth of our nation. Learning for Life established this award to honor Hill’s outstanding achievement in the character education field.

Purpose

The award is designed for council use to recognize individuals or organizations making an outstanding contribution to character education at the local, state, or national level that has added to the quality of life for families through Learning for Life programs. The award is also presented regionally and nationally.

Awards to Individuals

The council may present the Russell C. Hill Award to men and women who have rendered an outstanding contribution to character education at the local, state, or national level that has added to the quality of life for families through Learning for Life programs. Each council may determine the criteria and procedure for granting the award; therefore, each council develops its own nomination form. A suggested form is attached.

Awards to Organizations

The council may present the Russell C. Hill Award to schools, businesses, industries, labor unions, governmental agencies, civic clubs, fraternal groups, and other community organizations that have demonstrated outstanding contributions to character education at the local, state, or national level that has added to the quality of life for families through Learning for Life programs. Each council may determine the criteria and procedure for granting the award; therefore, each council develops its own nomination form. A suggested nomination form is attached.

Recognition Plaque

Design a local ceremony and order the award (No. 17434) from the National Distribution Center for presentation.

Selection Procedure

The Russell C. Hill Award selection committee is part of the program function of the local Learning for Life committee. Through proper public relations, focus attention on the winner and his or her accomplishments.
